

On getting off the car, eyes caught the sight of the cute, two-storeyed farm house and we were satisfied. The surroundings too seemed clean. The small way which led us to the first floor of 'Kaivalya' had small mango and coconut trees to both the sides. Feeling the cool breeze melted all the fatigue of the journey. It felt joyful because of such cool breeze and unpolluted air. Anyway, for Mumbaikars, all this is rare. Farms on all three sides, filled with water, it just seemed like lakes flowing on all the sides. Our rooms too were nice, airy & clean. It was blissful sitting on the 'jhula' in the 'verandah', chatting and enjoying the rain-water splashes against us.

The breakfast, lunch and dinner was extremely delicious. Everything of our liking be it veg or non-veg, too yummy and aromatic. We were completely happy & contented. The taste of 'Ukadiche Modaks' has lingered back.

The owner of 'Kaivalya', Mr. Vijay Joshi is a 'class' person. It's rare to find such a person in today's times! He looked after us, our demands and satisfied them instantly. Enjoying Mr. Joshi's warm hospitality, we didn't realize how the time flew, 4 days, from 11th June to 15th June!

Currently the mango and coconut trees are small but we hope that soon they'll grow tall along with the ever-growing beauty and blossom of 'Kaivalya'.

We wish 'Kaivalya', an ever-rising upward growth.
